

How military thinking can enhance business productivity.

There are many benefits you can gain if your employees are Reservists. Reservists are smarter thinkers, problem solvers with a team spirit to get on with the job. They are disciplined, motivated, highly focused and develop a range of skills that become second nature to them. It's qualities such as these that will contribute to your company succeeding in today's ever evolving business climate. What's more, by showing your support to your Reservist employees, the Employer Support Payment Scheme can provide financial assistance of more than $1,000* per week, which may be used for offsetting the costs of releasing Reservists for duty and paying for replacement staff. Discover how your business can be enhanced if your employees are Reservists, and learn about the benefits and obligations you have as an employer. With a range of other support services also available to you, you'll soon see how a Reservist can make all the difference.
