

Small business can prosper from employing Reservists.

There are many benefits you can gain if your employees are Reservists. Reservists are well aware of the skills, drive, leadership and confidence required in a team situation to succeed at the task at hand. In business, a similar thinking applies. You need staff to whom you can effectively delegate, who lead others in a team situation enabling you to concentrate on growing your business. Reservists fill this role. What's more, by showing your support to your Reservist employees, the Employer Support Payment Scheme can provide financial assistance of more than $1,000* per week, which may be used for offsetting the costs of releasing Reservists for duty and paying for replacement staff. Discover how your business can be enhanced if your employees are Reservists, and learn about the benefits and obligations you have as an employer. With a range of other support services also available to you, you'll soon see how a Reservist can make all the difference.
